

As nutrition supplements draw scrutiny, consumers are on their own

Jodie Tillman, Times Staff Writer ▾

Thursday, February 12, 2015 5:17pm

417 30 447

5

Supplements get little oversight. Consumers should read labels and buy brands with few extra ingredients. CHERIE DIEZ | Times

For years consumers have dealt with conflicting reports about the effectiveness of such nutritional supplements as fish oil, saw palmetto and St. John's wort.